

Creating a Recovery-Ready Community – Webinar

Our Presenter:

Keegan Wicks

Since 2013 Keegan has actively worked in the recovery field through roles in advocacy, counseling, and management. Keegan's personal commitment to helping others to a brighter future began with his own program of recovery, embraced by a highly supportive family system, several years before his professional involvement in the field. Through his career he has served in a wide variety of programs and activities on local, state and national levels. Keegan has advocated on behalf of recovery to policymakers at state and federal levels on Capitol Hill.

He has also been trained in Community Reinforcement and Family Training by the clinical research leadership at the Center for Motivation and Change. Keegan is credentialed as a National Certified Peer Recovery Support Specialist. A person in long-term recovery since December 2009, Keegan has first-hand experience living and maintaining an active, healthy, substance-free lifestyle.
